

BLR LIVES UP TO ITS OATH

“Sisikaping kong madagdagan ang aking talino at kakayahan upang ang antas ng paglilingkod sa bayan ay patuloy na maitaas.”

Living up to their oaths as government employees to seek knowledge and improve skills continuously in order to provide a better service to the public, employees of the Bureau of Labor Relations (BLR) spent their Philippine Independence Day learning and understanding the new updates on the labor and employment policies of the Duterte administration.

The learning sessions were held at the BLR Conference Room and covered topics from the basics of memorandum writing to lessons on existing rules on union registration, the newly-issued Executive Order No. 51, and the salient features of National Minimum Wage Bills to administrative matters such as the proposed rightsizing of the Bureau and the cash-based budget.

Dir. Benjo Santos M. Benavidez emphasized the importance of the learning session. “It is just expected that you are abreast to the challenges and the policy changes in the labor and employment sector, so that you will know how to address the concerns of our stakeholders”, because as government employees they took an oath to serve the public to the best of their skills and knowledge.
